HOW EVERY HOUSEKEEPER CAN BUY A LIBERTY BOND

This war has caused a soap shortage and the best way to save it is to use Jax's Crystal Compound, a preparation that will wash anything. A teaspoonful with a third of a bar of soap will clean a tub of four people's clothes in 20 minutes without scrubbing or boiling. Whiter, better, and more sanitary than in any other way. The Stamps to Carnegie Bros., 12 Ward Building, will bring you a box by parcel post. Every box you buy saves one dollar's worth of soap. Stamps returned if you are not pleased. Harmless to the skin and will not shrink woollens nor injure the most delicate fabric. Saves Time, Clothes, and Labor. Try a box and save the difference to buy a bond.

High Diplomats See Patriotic Play at Poli's

The first performance in Washington of "Getting Together," which Blanche Bates (Mrs. George Creel) rightly dubbed a "shameless appeal to patriotism" was presented last evening at Poli's Theater and served to give the old theater under its new management a fine send off. With the French Ambassador and Mme. Jusseland and the British Ambassador and Lady Reading in the audience, the White House represented by Miss Helen Woodford Bonas and the house crowded with representatives of the various embassies and war missions of the allies, as well as scores of officers of the United States army and navy, the premier was indeed a gala event from a social point of view.

The French Ambassador and Mme. Jusseland were accompanied by members of the embassy staff and of the French high commission. The party occupying two boxes. The Italian Ambassador and Countess di Cellera, accompanied by the military attaché of the embassy, General Gugliemotti, and other members of the staff, were present; and the Belgian minister, Mr. de Cartier de Marchienne, entertained guests in his box.

The British Ambassador and Lady Reading were guests of Maj. Gen. J. D. MacLachlan, military attaché of the embassy, who gave a dinner in their honor at the Army and Navy Club before the play. The party, which filled two boxes, included Admiral Grant, of the British navy, and Lady Grant; Lieutenant General Bridges, of the British army; Maj. Gen. Peyton March, acting chief of staff, U. S. A.; Brigadier General Proctor, and Major Crawford Stuart, both of the British army.

The Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Daniels were among those in the boxes, being guests of George Creel, whose wife played a prominent role in the patriotic spectacle. The audience also included the Secretary of War and Mrs. Baker, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Carl Vrooman, Capt. and Mrs. John Gregory Hope, Miss Eleanor Morgan, John Barrett, Vance McCormack, and many others of equal prominence.

It was a curious assemblage, probably two-thirds of it being men and probably two-thirds of them in uniform. If there was a British, French, Italian, or Belgian soldier in town who was not there, it must have been because he couldn't get seats.

At the wedding of Miss Heather Patterson Baxter, daughter of Naval Constructor W. J. Baxter, U. S. N., and Mrs. Baxter, to Lieut. Myron Wells Hutchinson, U. S. N., which took place in Philadelphia Saturday, April 20, at the Acorn Club, the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Alexander MacCoo, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church. The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Margaret Cunningham Baxter. After the ceremony the wedding party followed the old navy custom of forming an arch with crossed swords, under which the bride partly passed, and the bride followed another navy custom, that of cutting the wedding cake with her husband's sword.

Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese minister, will go to New York to be an usher at the wedding of Miss Bigelow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Emerson Bigelow, and Lieut. Ward Melville, which is to take place on Tuesday afternoon, April 30, at 4 o'clock, in St. George's Church, Stuyvesant square.

What lends itself to the habits of ease and convenience of the people, and because it lends itself to the convenience of the people, we want it sent to Europe and not kept here.

Every woman who works should make it a point to consult a physician who specializes in eye treatment—an oculist—at least once a year.

Even though he does not wear glasses, a person who has the least bit of strain in his eyes should be examined by an oculist. If glasses are necessary the oculist will write a prescription for them. The prescription should be filled by an optician who is a master of his craft. Good service costs no more than most of the inferior service often urged upon the public.
